More specifically, the present invention is directed to the combination of a number of characteristics which are desirable in a phase change ink composition, and a phase change ink exhibiting the characteristics. In general, phase change inks (sometimes also referred to as solid inks or hot melt inks) are in the solid phase at ambient temperature, and are selectively liquidized at an elevated operating temperature of an associated printing device. Such phase change inks may, for example, be used in ink jet printing devices, including drop-on-demand ink jet printing devices. The present invention provides phase change ink compositions that are solid at ambient temperature and liquid at an elevated temperature of an associated ink jet printing device. Furthermore, the invention provides ink compositions containing certain amine compounds which do not adversely affect the performance of phase change ink compositions containing such amine compounds. In general, the amine compounds of the invention are characterized by one of two structures: 1. an amine-functional solid acid; or 2. an amine-functional amide or carboxylic acid. The amine-functional solid acids of the invention include those having the formula: (R1)p-(NH)q-Mxe2x80x94C(O)R2 in which R1 is an alkyl, aryl, alkaryl, or alkenyl group containing 1 to 30 carbon atoms; M is an alkali metal or an ammonium group, preferably an ammonium group, p is 0 or 1; and q is 1, 2, or 3. R2 is an organic group containing at least one carboxyl group, preferably a carboxylic acid group. One preferred amine-functional solid acid is ammonium phosphate. Ammonium phosphate is available commercially from various sources such as Akzo Nobel Chemicals. Other useful amine-functional solid acids include aminopropyl phosphate, dibutyl aminobenzoate, and tributyl amine-2-ethylhexanoate. The amine-functional solid acids
