[Idiopathic duodenal obstruction in infants and children]. The results of surgical treatment of 32 children (5 girls and 27 boys aged 6 days to 16 years and 6 months) with idiopathic duodenal obstruction are reported. Duodenal dysmotility was associated with alimentary tract malformations in the majority of patients. Residual alimentary tract obstruction was detected in 50% of the patients with duodenal stenosis and 50% of those with duodenal stenosis and duodenojejunal diverticulosis. The time of the disease presentation is a critical factor affecting results of surgical treatment. Prognosis for the patients with idiopathic duodenal obstruction is satisfactory. Effect of protein deficiency on the uptake and binding of thymidine and 5-bromo-2'-deoxyuridine to cultured myocardial and skeletal muscle cells. Cell-dependent and cell-independent uptake of thymidine and 5-bromo-2'-deoxyuridine (BrdUrd) was measured in tissue culture cells from normal and low protein (LPD) rats. LPD resulted in decreased cellular uptake of both BrdUrd and thymidine. Competition studies showed that both compounds were transported by a similar carrier system. The cellular uptake of BrdUrd appeared to be saturable. Analysis of the effect of LPD on the kinetics of uptake of BrdUrd showed that the apparent affinity of the carrier system for BrdUrd was increased in tissues from LPD animals. Ruthless (film) Ruthless is a 1969 American Western film directed by R. G. Springsteen and written by Arthur M. Frank. The film stars Victor Mature, Ann-Margret, Leslie Parrish, Roberta Collins, L. Q. Jones and Paul Brinegar. The film was released on June 13, 1969, by Columbia Pictures. Plot In the Mississippi River country of the 1870s, the Kid Rawlins murders a man in a saloon. Rawlins is forced by his wealthy father to plead guilty in return for leniency after his sentence for murder. Captain Harden, the judge, rejects the plea, and Rawlins is sentenced to hang. A month later, a rider on the trail of the Kid's gang is shot dead, and the murder is traced to Rawlins. A posse is assembled to capture the Kid, who is now terrorizing the area, and a reward is offered for his capture. Rawlins kills the wrong man, however, and is captured and brought before Captain Harden. He is sentenced to hang for his crime, and is then attacked by a mob and gang which insist he is a notorious criminal wanted by the law. They take him to a nearby town where he is captured by a posse, led by Sheriff Henry Armbruster and his deputy, Neal. Rawlins is then taken to the small town of Cochise, where he is cornered by Neal's sister, Chloris. Chloris reveals that she has been in love with Rawlins for some time, and wants to prove that he is guilty of murder and has been made a fugitive by framing him for killing her brother. However, she has only one way to do it: She will marry him on the morning of his execution. When the Kid and his gang arrive, Rawlins realizes the situation and escapes, only to encounter Chloris. She shows him a hidden knife and tells him to kill her if he values his life. Rawlins leaves without trying and rides to the nearest town. He meets Brigid, a maid employed in the local home of an aristocratic gentleman who loves her like a daughter, and becomes smitten with her. Rawlins returns to the big house and falls asleep, but is awakened by his father. He's about to tell his father that he killed a man when the elder Rawlins beats him and departs. Not long afterward, the Kid and his gang
