AdvertisementKolkata: A district court in Kolkata has held a woman guilty of giving birth to a child who was then abandoned. Additional Chief Metropolitan Magistrate Neelima Sen was hearing an appeal by the children's mother Nandita Ganguly in the case. The court's verdict said she had given birth to a child that was abandoned at the teeming Sadar hospital in the middle of the night on Dec 19, 2017. The infant had a fever and was immediately taken to the paediatrician, the court said. The paediatrician had examined the baby and after two hours of treatment the baby was discharged. However, when the ward staff was informed that a baby with a febrile condition had been discharged, the staff took the baby home and abandoned her there at about 12.30 am. The court said that after the ward staff was informed about the incident they called police but there was no one in the hospital premises at the time. "It is a known fact that if the child is not treated at the hospital at the earliest, then the chances of that child surviving are nil as the number of these children are huge every day," the court said. "The doctors and the concerned ward staff of Sadar hospital knew that the mother of the infant had deserted the child at the hospital at about 12.30 am. But no one had shown any compassion for the child," the court said. According to the court, the mother and the children's father had lived separately for a few years. The child was born in 2013 and her parents had been living separately since 2014, the court said. "When the baby was born the parents did not put up any fight to save the baby as per their wish," the court said. "But the child survived and after the child became an adult the child came forward to complain to the media that her parents had deserted her at birth and that she had experienced severe pain and was kept in dark for long," the court said.
