Q: Get the data from JSON on Google Fit I want to create a GoogleFit app to check if my dog has been on a walk after a certain time. I have the Google Fit API key and the value to check; But when I call the API to get the data, the URL that is returned is: The actual value is not returned and I can't even see a JSON format. A: You should be able to just get the data using this: public void gfValue(){ // TODO Intent i=new Intent(getApplicationContext(), GoogleFittActivity.class); i.addFlags(Intent.FLAG_ACTIVITY_CLEAR_TOP); i.putExtra("key", "your api key"); startActivity(i); } Q: Why is my var, initialized by default, not nil? I'm using Cocos2d-X 2.3 and I am trying to set a default value to a variable. CCDirector *director = CCDirector::sharedDirector(); The first time I call this method it returns a CCFileData object. CCFileData *data = director->getRunningScene()->getBackgroundRes(); The first time I call this method, the returned value is the proper cc.FileData object. But, when I call it again, the method is returning null. Anyone has an idea? Regards, Vicens A: The CCDirector class defines a property called runningScene. It returns an instance of CCActionInterval. That class stores the last scene, which might change when you start a new scene. So it is not a static property, just the property. This is why you get different values every time
