RhoB GTPase, a member of Rho family GTPases, has been shown to be a potent negative regulator of cell proliferation and a tumor suppressor. However, the role of RhoB in breast cancer remains controversial. We have examined the expression and the potential function of RhoB in breast cancer cells and tissues, including MCF-7, MDA-MB-231, BT-474, T47D and MDA-MB-453 cells, as well as 20 pairs of primary breast cancer and non-cancerous tissues by Western blotting and immunohistochemistry. Results showed that RhoB was upregulated in human breast cancer cell lines and tissues and overexpression of RhoB in MCF-7 cells inhibited cell proliferation and induced cell apoptosis. The inhibition of cell growth could be attributed to increased caspase-3 activation. In addition, overexpression of RhoB in MCF-7 cells promoted cell motility and invasiveness. We found that the putative RhoB binding site in the promoter region of MMP-9 gene was indispensable for RhoB-mediated transcriptional regulation of MMP-9. Overexpression of RhoB in MCF-7 cells led to enhanced binding of histone deacetylase 1 (HDAC1) on the MMP-9 promoter. Knockdown of HDAC1 reversed RhoB-induced upregulation of MMP-9 and the transcriptional activity of MMP-9. Thus, we demonstrated that RhoB expression was significantly upregulated in breast cancer cells and tissues, and this upregulation was associated with invasive properties of the cells, implying the role of RhoB as a novel regulator of breast cancer progression.Q: How to convert.xls file to.csv format using apache poi I am new to Apache poi. Estimation of the volume and accuracy of the human auditory cortex by a novel MR imaging technique with inhomogeneous sensitivity profile: a phantom study. A novel magnetic resonance (MR) imaging method with a volume selective sensitivity profile was developed to estimate the volume and reproducibility of the human auditory cortex. The sensitivity profile of the MR imaging was calculated as a convolution of the tissue-selective sensitivity profile of the MR imaging and the volume-selective sensitivity profile of the human auditory cortex. The volume of the auditory cortex and the reproducibility of its estimation were estimated by the proposed method and a conventional partial-volume (PV) method with an inhomogeneous profile. The volume of the auditory cortex was estimated by the conventional PV method with an inhomogeneous profile (mean, 5.8+/-1.8 cm3; range, 3.5-9.4 cm3) and that of the proposed method (mean, 6.4+/-2.1 cm3; range, 3.6-10.2 cm3) with the overestimation rate of 11.6% and 11.8% respectively. These results suggest that the proposed method with an inhomogeneous sensitivity profile can estimate the volume of the auditory cortex with a high accuracy. Furthermore, the reproducibility of the estimation of the volume of the auditory cortex was almost equal between the two methods (standard deviation, 1.6 cm3).Q: Can a list of entries be created with values?
