SyncSharp is the first open-source Windows application that allows you to create, edit, backup and synchronize .NET Framework-enabled projects and solutions on a portable device with minimum effort and without sacrificing functionality. What's new * Added "Sync Wizard" to project/solution wizard (Update and Restore settings) * Added support for language packs (Update and Restore settings) * Added additional support for Portable Class Library * Added language support for Czech and Polish * Fixed detection of AutoPlay disabled in Windows 10 As we are more and more exposed to data, we should also keep up with security. One of the measures is having a backup with the possibility to restore in case of system failure. In this case, SyncSharp comes with a user interface, which you can use to schedule automatic backups. In addition, SyncSharp offers support for FAT and NTFS drives, and also, back ups that can be restored on other devices. In the past we were able to schedule backups with the Task Scheduler, and also, back ups through the Backup utility, which was a pretty decent application. In order to make our experience smoother, SyncSharp offers a user interface, that can be accessed from any location, and allows us to choose where we want to store backups. A few last words SyncSharp allows you to create, edit, backup and synchronize portable applications, which is convenient, and a perfect way to keep backups. The implementation is really easy, with a comfortable user interface, which allows us to schedule automatic back ups. Are you familiar with the term "data recovery"? There are a few applications out there that can easily restore files, but do you know what happens when data loss is caused by a drive failure? In that case, file recovery is a mandatory operation, as it's not that easy to replace hard drives. Once a drive is disconnected from the system, files may become inaccessible, especially if they were stored in inaccessible areas of the disk, which is the case in the case of drive failures. In case of file system corruption
