KEYMACRO allows you to define macros. Macros allow you to automate and repeat certain tasks, depending on the values of a number of cells or even variables. The software allows you to control the macro via the Inspector tool, without entering a macro code. Create and edit macros The software includes a macro editor. It allows you to create and edit all your defined macros. As an example, you may create a macro, which provides a userform with an option dialog. Then, you may set the visible option in the current cell and all the cells next to it. Compatibility with Excel 2010 KEYMACRO allows you to define macros in Microsoft Excel 2010, 2013, 2016, 365 or Office 365. As an example, you may create a macro, which opens the program window and executes the next code. The software may be used by people who are familiar with other programming languages, but cannot program. Unique macro editor The software features a special macro editor. As an example, you may create a macro, which allows you to find the current cell. The software includes an editor with the current cell and it provides the range and other information. You may define and execute simple or complex macros, which allow you to quickly perform a certain task. KEYMACRO provides you with the maximum flexibility in working with macros. You may define your own cell values, work with custom or repeated functions. As an example, you may create a macro, which allows you to search the current cell. Then, you may start a process or execute the macro in all the current cells. Take advantage of the functions in Excel With KEYMACRO you may extend the functions in Excel. You may perform different functions with macros, depending on the values of cells. You may even create macros, which may automatically insert values from certain fields in the database, such as user name, password, server name, or current date. Use the functions in other applications KEYMACRO includes the functions, which you can use in other applications, such as Microsoft Word, PowerPoint, Outlook, and others. The software includes functions, which may be used to sort and arrange the data in Excel or database tables. The software includes functions, which may be used to search or filter data. Database functions The software provides the same features for all databases. You may use the functions in SQL Server, MySQL or MariaDB. As an example, you may create a macro, which allows you to convert values from one number to another.
