

Category:Solid EdgeCollege Hockey: (Peter Bortell - The Washington Post) The Hockey News staff writers are here to look at three interesting storylines from the conference tournaments that occurred during the week. Today, we take a look at three potential big time teams that lost on Tuesday. We will be looking at three potential first-round picks for the 2014 NHL Draft. 1.) Minnesota Duluth Coach Don Lucia has been noted for his head coaching prowess and this season has shown he is indeed a good coach. The offense was not lacking this season and the team has one of the best goaltenders in the nation in the net this year. What's intriguing this year is that Minnesota Duluth has a potential first round pick as a result of last year's upsets. The Bulldogs lost in the CCHA tournament last year to Lake Superior, but they have to be thrilled to be back in it this year as the Spartans are all but locked in as first rounders in the upcoming draft. The Bulldogs were not good in the regular season as they went 12-16-3 overall and 3-13-0 in the conference. They finished second in the conference despite the fact that they were tied with Miami for a first place tie and did not clinch a spot until the last day of the season. They will need to be in the top 10 to be eligible for a top three selection. 2.) Union College Union had a very interesting season this year. The Dutchmen played a punishing style of hockey and found a way to do extremely well. They finished 9-14-1 overall this year and 9-9-1 in the CCHA. They finished fifth overall in the conference and were tied with Ferris for a first place tie. The Dutchmen have back-to-back years in the NCAA tournament and that is a first in the history of Union, which has been a perennial powerhouse. They were able to sneak their way into this year's tournament thanks to conference losses by Miami and Bemidji State. That was a huge victory for them as they made it all the way to the Final Four. The Dutchmen will look to do it again and should be considered a possible top three or four seed. 3.) Providence College You could not ask for a more interesting scenario. The Friars are tied for the Hockey East regular season title and have a first round pick as a result of the previous round upset. The
