Setup is included Visual basic run times....In order to save the planet and make the world a better place, a lot of people are trying to do their bit. And some of them are doing it in a pretty impressive way. Whether it's protecting forests or helping farmers in developing nations, a lot of people are engaged in making their world a better place, and doing it not for the money but for the simple reason of making it a better place. And one such person is Darren Heath. In order to put things in perspective, we need to first know who Darren is. According to the Times Online, he is a British farmer who was awarded with the George Cross, the highest award for acts of bravery during the Second World War. It also said that he is also a single-malt whisky enthusiast, apart from everything else. It also added that he is one of the few farmers to have been awarded the highest British honour for bravery. However, he took his award on a whole new level. That's when he decided to help the Children's Army (CA), a non-profit organisation set up by Prince

Charles, to support underprivileged children. Darren dedicated his entire life to helping the CA's in his region, which is Cumbria, England. He joined the CA as a member and was subsequently trained by them. Since then he has been working on various projects under CA. Image: gc.gov.uk He has been actively involved in many projects, especially in food, and education. In fact, many of the projects are focussed towards encouraging the girls to get into better education. For instance, his group of farmers provides four meals a week to a couple of schools in the area. Not just that, they also teach the children how to cook. Darren has also been instrumental in creating a farm that is specifically for the CA. He said: "The children at the CA want to learn things. Like science and physics. They've got this real thirst to learn new things. We make sure that they have access to an environment that is like a mini school, where they
