The effect of a free fatty acid-rich meal on plasma thyroid hormone binding. To investigate the effect of a meal rich in free fatty acids on plasma thyroid hormone binding, seven male volunteers were studied during the second trimester of pregnancy. After an overnight fast, blood was drawn before and for 4 h after a standard meal. Total binding of 3,5,3'-triiodothyronine (T3) increased and total binding of T3 decreased after the meal from 14.9 +/- 0.3% to 15.5 +/- 0.3% (P less than 0.05) and from 4.7 +/- 0.2% to 4.1 +/- 0.1% (P less than 0.001), respectively. Free T3, however, decreased from 0.27 +/- 0.03 to 0.25 +/- 0.04 ng/mL (P less than 0.001), while free T4 showed no change. The free fatty acid content increased from 0.23 +/- 0.02 to 0.30 +/- 0.02 mmol/L (P less than 0.01). These changes in T3 and T4 binding were reflected in the blood hormone values. There was a strong correlation between the change in total binding of T3 and free fatty acids ( $r = 0.76$ , P less than 0.001). We conclude that although a meal rich in free fatty acids has no effect on the binding of T4, it may interfere with the binding of T3. Free fatty acids appear to compete with T4 for specific binding sites on the human serum thyroxine binding globulin (TBG)., the jury must necessarily have had some evidence or inference, other than the stricken evidence, to sustain their verdict. But in a criminal case, the state cannot rely on the unsupported averments of an arresting officer to establish the corpus delicti or to sustain a conviction; there must be other evidence to support the conviction, and if this evidence is withdrawn and the jury are forced to rely upon the unsupported testimony of a police officer, this is in plain violation of the defendant's constitutional right to due process of law. The fact that a defendant is convicted of a crime does not authorize the state to use the defendant's silence to support his conviction; such silence alone cannot support a conviction because it is a denial of Fifth Amendment rights.[1] The California Supreme Court, in People v. Lawrence, 149 Cal. App.2d 435, 446, 308 P.2d 8
