Media Matters, which is funded by the liberal Ford, Rockefeller, and Soros foundations, wrote a letter to Apple this week demanding the removal of the "racist" program IFC Listening Post from the iTunes store. "The play, which was produced and directed by Reggie and Imani Ugoel, which cost $2.8 million and took its audience across the globe, literally celebrated privileged white women and maligned Black and brown women," the organization claims. "Producers and directors of the TV series described the show as a 'satirical black adaptation of "The Graduate" that seamlessly blends the musical with the serious as well as the funny,'" they continue. "The show has since been removed from the iTunes store." Here's a copy of their letter to Apple: Media Matters' letter also attacked Rush Limbaugh for his comments about a young woman on public assistance who had difficulty getting pregnant. He said, "So, you know what, let's just see if we can get this through to her. Go ahead, let's start with teen pregnancy. Remember, if you can't get it up, you've got a big problem." "Mr. Limbaugh's implication that a woman on public assistance, who may very well be in her teens, has a 'big problem' that she should

This is just what the title says. That is that you are getting the chance to watch the 2004 edition of the Lifetime Movie of the Week. In this story, Queen Rita has to call upon her resourceful leadership skills in order to keep the country from falling apart. For those who have never watched this movie, I highly recommend you do so, because it is a great story. There's even a period piece in the story of what life was like in the mid-1990's, including fighting in the White House. Here's a sentence I often use: It is what it is. When someone does something stupid or wrong, all you have to do is say, "it is what it is." Recently, I found myself facing a dilemma that most of us face sooner or later. We have a huge mess in front of us. We feel like it is the end of the world, and we are trying to figure out how to clean it up. Maybe we're out of money, or maybe we're hurt, or maybe we're tired of talking about it. So what do we do? The answer is what it is, and it is not a very pleasant feeling. I was in a bookstore recently and found my book, Believe! The Power of Positive Thinking to change your life. It is the same book that I gave away to a lot of you on Twitter and Facebook last week. The introduction of the book says, "I have come to understand that everything in my life, everything I have experienced, is exactly as it should be. There are no accidents." I read this quote and thought, 'It is what it is,' and it just seemed to sink in. It is what it is. It just is what it is. If you want things to change, then you must not only believe that they can change, you must also believe that they are changing. If you believe that you can change
