Civitas Features Key:

Each player represents a country.

Each human player has their own character.

Lineage/Prosperity/Rebirth games are played.

Players can assume minor roles like the king, queen or chariot driver.

The human prostate contains, on average, 1 g of carbohydrate, 0.7 g of protein, and 20 mg of sodium. This amounts to just 6% of the total body weight or 3% of the dietary intake. Sodium in amounts exceeding 1 g/day significantly increase the bioavailability of calcium in the dietary calcium-sodium complex. For this reason, increasing the dietary sodium intake to as much as 4 g/day without concomitant reduction of the dietary calcium intake may lead to an increase in the incidence of prostate cancer. In addition, studies have shown that depending on the amount and frequency of consumption, sodium may have influence on emotions and depression. It is well known that dietary sodium may play an important role in blood pressure elevation associated with heart disease. Sodium is the most important mineral in salt; 90% of sodium found in all fluids and tissues of the body. Sodium cycles continuously between the blood and cells through sodium pumps (Na+/K+-ATPase) on the cell membrane. The role of sodium as a negative valence ion is to help in maintaining fluid and electrolyte balance by allowing the tightly controlled potassium ion to move out of the cells to the blood stream. There, the potassium ions allow the cell to maintain its charge and thus allows it to conduct electrical impulses. It is also known that sodium plays a role in nerve conduction, glucose transport in the cell membrane, and synthesize adenine and act as a co-factor in the enzyme ATP. Prostate cancer (PCa) is the third leading cause of cancer related mortality in men. Currently, the most effective treatment for PCa is surgical removal and finasteride, yet many patients undergo continued screening and monitoring in spite of these treatments. Life expectancy for a patient with PCa has been greatly improved by drug therapy. Although the precise reasons are not fully understood, prognosis for early stage PCa treated with radiation, radical prostatectomy, or androgen ablation is excellent (Chou J. et al. J. Urol. 2012, 207(2

---

What's new:

Player An Optimistic Donald Trump for 2020
We are now ~5 months away from Trump's second term. This is why I don't like typical "balloting" arguments. Sure, many might like to live in a world where everyone knows if your favorite candidate is going to win their battleground or not in advance, so you can make a more informed and rational decision. This, however, is a world that I hope does not exist. The third debate between Trump and the Democrats has come and gone and we still are seeing the same things on the left side of the political spectrum as we were over 20 months ago. Nothing has changed. Trump has the edge. The cries that Trump will lose are as dishonest and extreme as they have always been. You can't deny Trump's popularity among many as well as support for his policies. President Trump has successfully moved the country leftward. However, I am not a member of the #NeverTrump crowd. Have no interest in making Hillary president. Although I am certainly not a fan of Hillary, I will admit it is because of Trump that she will no longer be president. Trump has saved me $2,030. To put that in perspective, when Trump first announced his intention to run as a Republican, the average cost of a mortgage was 2% lower than it is currently. If Trump does not win, mortgage rates will be higher than they are today. To put it into another perspective, take the average car loan. The average payment today is $567 per month. As of 6/28/18, it is $647 per month. We had four more years of a Trump

and the outcome would look something like what we have today. Now, some will say “That couldn’t be! It will surely be much better!”. Well, if Trump goes down in defeat, it will certainly be worse than it is now. For example, energy prices are much higher than they are today. Take gas, oil, and coal for example. We are now in a completely different position than we were in 2011. The fracking boom is about to run its course. Oil and gas are back to around 2005 levels for the remaining year or two. Eventually, very high prices that have lasted for decades will end. Trump’s policies are good for the economy. There is not much hope of that in a Clinton presidency. Forecasts that Trump
