The cnc simulator is a 3D simulator with a real-time tracking and display of machining movements, triggered by z-axis .(Reuters) - Nike Inc plans to sell footwear without sole material from the Canadian province of British Columbia in retaliation for the imposition of new tariffs on its products by President Donald Trump, the Oregon company said on Thursday. Nike's Inc headquarters in Beaverton, Oregon, U.S., July 4, 2017. REUTERS/Mike Blake/File Photo The Portland, Oregon-based athletic brand said in a statement that it was seeking legal protection from B.C. laws that limit the amount of forest-clearing that can occur in the province. Nike said the sole material was a type of sustainable non-renewable forest resource known as “white cedar,” a timber used in shoe soles. It said sales of the material in the province would also be temporarily halted. B.C. announced in April that it planned to triple logging limits in the province. Nike said in its statement that the move could cut logging by 75 percent in a year and deprive B.C. of $1 billion in annual revenue. Nike said that it was “not advocating” for a change in B.C.’s laws, which are intended to protect species and natural forests. “We’ve been pursuing this carefully,” Nike said in the statement, but is “forced to act” now because of the “federal trade retaliation against Canadian trade.” The president is considering tariffs on imported footwear, due in part to B.C.’s softer laws, according to a person familiar with the matter. The National Basketball Association and National Football League have suggested to the White House that they could move some events out of North America if the tariffs are imposed. The NBA said it had not discussed its markets with the White House but that it was “always prepared.” On Wednesday, Canada and the U.S. agreed to resume softwood lumber trade that had been suspended for a decade. Nike said it made 52 percent of its footwear outside of North America and it had sold “millions” of the products in B.C. “We believe this effort 595f342e71
