Each player's movement patterns and acceleration are collated into attack, defense, midfield, and other components for each position. Along with the live player data, artificial intelligence (AI) and football specific mechanics like handling and first touches create complex behaviours that make each player unique. Since FIFA 17, the animations of players have been refined further; players move with more emotion, and react to each other more realistically. The game's visuals have also been improved for FIFA 22. Powered by next-generation consoles, FIFA 22 will support dynamic real-time lighting and shadows throughout stadiums, which coupled with the new digital player models and improved textures, create a more realistic look. Check out more gameplay from the upcoming game in the trailer above, and be sure to read the full release below. The number one football game for Xbox One and PlayStation®4 will arrive at retailers worldwide on June 29th, 2018. Xbox One, PlayStation 4 and PC users will be able to take full advantage of all the new features, including "HyperMotion Technology," "Access All Areas," and many more. Sudjic: "I am incredibly proud of the work our teams have done since the game's original reveal. With each new iteration of FIFA it has become increasingly clear that football is a sport that, in the right hands, is a virtual mirror to our world. Therefore, I am certain that we'll learn a lot more about the social implications of digital technology and digital ethics on our professional game in the coming weeks." Pietro: "For us at EA SPORTS, football is more than a sport. We take a lot of pride in a video game that we can use in our daily life. We understand that with FIFA we're able to share our passion for the game on and off the pitch. There are a lot of things we want to share with the world - from using the hashtag #FIFA18ifvolve against diseases like COVID-19 to our amazing 'FIFAIfucation' videos on one-on-one interactions with the game's mechanics. Football transcends all language barriers and is the main thing that we want to share on every platform." "There are so many innovations on the way that it would be impossible to list them
