The initial launch of the game has reached 81 million copies sold, now adding to the existing installed base on current-gen hardware. EA has also released a new version of FIFA 18 for PlayStation 4, Xbox One and PC that is also available on the Nintendo Switch. The game is now available on PlayStation 4, Xbox One, and PC in over 180 countries and on mobile in over 50 countries. EA has also announced an exciting new cooperative experience coming to FIFA 22 and FIFA 18 for the first time on console, with a companion app launching in collaboration with Amazon. Unleash a large, diverse and inclusive group of friends, connect with them with mobile devices, and access the game together through the FIFA Ultimate Team app on iOS and Android. This includes player control, animations and behaviours, game balancing, FIFA Ultimate Team item purchases and player feedback on goal celebration. In FIFA 22, your experience depends on more than just one player, giving you more to choose from. Create your own squad of 15 elite athletes and add them to your Ultimate Team.
