Computer software A set of software for organizing information and running programs on a computer.Donald Trump's campaign is reportedly considering hiring the former attorney general of Mississippi, Mike Moore, as the Republican candidate's attorney general nominee. Moore, who is black, was part of the Justice Department team that defended the Confederate battle flag during the 1990s, a move that received criticism across the political spectrum. He later worked for years to remove the flag's civil rights connotation, according to the Associated Press. His appointment as a Trump campaign surrogate came as the Justice Department announced a renewed push against the flag, since it led the deadly riots in July 2016 that killed five blacks in Charlottesville, Va. "I just learned about it this morning," said Mississippi Lt. Gov. Tate Reeves, who is also a Republican and a favorite to replace Attorney General Jim Hood if he leaves for other government work. "I don't think it's a good idea." Calls and emails to Moore and the Trump campaign were not immediately returned. Moore was appointed by former President Jimmy Carter in 1979 to serve as the district attorney for the 15th Judicial District of Mississippi, an interim position. He was elected district attorney in 1980 and re-elected in 1984. While he was elected district attorney in 1980, he served three terms as district attorney for the 13th Judicial District before being elected lieutenant governor in 2008. He then ran for Mississippi attorney general in 2014, finishing second to Hood, who has been a political ally of Republican Gov. Phil Bryant. Trump's campaign seeks to capitalize on Hood's unsuccessful bid against Moore. Moore has the advantage of having worked in the Justice Department, while Hood served as the state's chief law enforcement officer and created a task force to examine the deadly riots in Charlottesville. Many Democratic politicians have come out against Moore's nomination, calling for his removal from the position in order to leave an open seat. Liberal Washington Post columnist Jennifer Rubin also came out against Moore's appointment in a column this week, writing that Trump's group "is being guided by the most racist elements of the Republican Party — elements that have no use for the rule of law, value individual rights or decency," and that Moore would be an attorney who would defend racial discrimination. "It is difficult to imagine who could be a worse
