Cave Story is a 2D side-scrolling graphic adventure game. The name Cave Story comes from the game's development studio, Pixel Studios, which was originally a team of one man, Pixel, and a mouse. The studio's passion project, Cave Story, was made by Pixel and a single mouse, and pixelated from start to finish. Pixel Studios was founded in 2003 by a mouse and a man. The company was initially just a one-man operation, Pixel, but over the years the staff grew. The studio has since grown to more than 25 employees, and the company was renamed Studio Pixel in 2009. Pixel Studios' game, Cave Story, was made in its entirety by a single man, Pixel, an artist who loved to make games. He coded the game with one PC, one mouse, and a few hundred dollars, and was the only staff member. Although no longer an independent studio, there is still much love for Cave Story. The work of the entire team is on display throughout the game, and the game's name is spelled in the original Japanese katakana. The company's slogan reads: There's only pixel. This game is currently on the market as Cave Story: Encore. About Us: Cave Story came out in October 2001 and was one of the first big 3D games on the PlayStation 2. It was made by a single individual for the PlayStation 2, and received a sequel, Cave Story+ in 2003. In 2007, Portal was released for the PC, which won multiple awards for best game of the year. Portal spawned a number of sequels, including Portal 2 and Portal Stories: Mel on the as-yet unfinished iPhone. The original Cave Story was also ported to the Wii in 2009 and includes compatibility with the Wii's motion controls. About Secret Santa Ads on the site have been disabled due to inactivity. : Derby Update I don't know why, but for some reason I've been totally obsessed with The Voice – it's on both Sky and ITV this week! So while the BBC show's performances are on I'm offering an alternative set of events that should be coming up shortly. On Tuesday 31st July: On Thursday 2nd August: On Monday 6th August: On Saturday 11th August: On Friday 17th August: On Wednesday 28th August: On Monday 10th August: On Friday 21st August: On Wednesday 25th August: Not only does racing take place at various locations across the county but the winners of which of the many running events decide the major race in August (which is a little bit of a landmark). I hate racing in general but this scenario is best just to keep people busy in July until we get the summer racing season in its stride (August). So, let's get started. MONDAY – August 3rd MEN HOLD BACK TO WIN LONDON TO LONDON CHESS CHAMPIONSHIP Pimram, Cornwall, 8:30am. Five runners here with the notable absentees being Scottish runner Damien Smith and English prospect Anthony Gurram. After a decision to back one of them and then later going for all-in the final choice is someone who I'm new to. Mullion Noble has been ruling in the 6 and 7 year old classes, having what is probably the best run for such a start on the circuit. Thursday – August 6th – Ladbroke 5f/5y Handicap Chase No race of any description in Cornwall on this date. Saturday – August 8th Mullion Noble, Sir Percy and Lady Molly also start the day's big race: Sir Percy (Dudley) looks very tempting in his home race while Mullion Noble goes all-out (after a good deal of co-operation from the stewards) when facing Romanov (Action On The Hammers Chase). The latter should prove to be a tricky one. Lady Molly also has the chance in her home race when facing Sigma (also an all-out affair!). The odds are in City Artist (dark horse) and this could well be his race.
