The task force, as a result, authored what was described as a "roadmap" to federal legalization. A copy of the roadmap has been released to the public, which outlines the tasks needed to accomplish the four goals of legalization—safety, taxation, distribution, and consumer protection. On October 23, 2018, the task force released an interim report on its work and called on the Government of Canada to legalize cannabis-related activities "by July 2019." On November 1, 2018, the task force released the Implementation Roadmap for Good Regulatory Governance in the Cannabis Sector, which was also in consultation with the provinces, territories, and Indigenous peoples. On December 11, 2018, the task force released an update to the report, which was distributed in the provinces and territories, addressing issues from market access to criminal records for pot possession. Federal government response On March 22, 2016, former Prime Minister Stephen Harper announced the task force on cannabis that would help create a regulatory
