In the development of diabetes medications, a triptolide derivative, L-744,872, became the first-of-a-kind agent that selectively activates AMPK and can be used for treating type 2 diabetes [1]. After many years of clinical tests, AMPK activators were approved as diabetes drugs by regulatory agencies, and their efficacy was also reported [2]. With the rapid growth of research on cellular energy metabolism, the number of articles about the regulation of AMPK has also increased. However, knowledge of the upstream or downstream sensors or molecules that regulate AMPK activation is limited. Therefore, this study aims to provide a review of the upstream factors that regulate AMPK activation. How do cells detect the energy state? ===== Calorie restriction was previously recognized as the only way to activate AMPK, while the mechanisms underlying this phenomenon are still unclear [3]. In the same time, Vinyard et al. [4] proposed that AMPK can be activated by changes in the AMP/ATP ratio due to changes in cellular energy flux. After this work, many other sensors for AMP/ATP ratio have been reported. These sensors are quite different from

The stability of DNA polymerase alpha and delta in the presence of ten antibiotics was compared. The presence of the antibiotics greatly decreased the stability of DNA polymerase alpha. The stability of DNA polymerase delta in the presence of antibiotics was moderate. The differences of the stability were observed in general, but some beta-lactams are more similar for these enzymes. It was also found that inhibitors of DNA polymerases decreased the stability of beta-lactamase, but not the reverse reaction.Q: Compilation error when installing the new version of PHP I have been trying to install the latest version of PHP (5.6.4) and I am getting the following error: Andromeda-7:pandora pauldix$ sudo apt-get install php5 [sudo] password for pauldix: Reading package lists...
