I would think since my model is being handled entirely by MVC's model binder I wouldn't have to use a jsonp, but it won't serialize my model which is defined as a complex type. Can you guys point me in the right direction? $(document).ready(function() { $('#poll').submit(function() { $.ajax({ url: "/Home/Poll", type: "POST", data: { data: JSON.stringify($("#poll").serializeObject())}, dataType: "json", contentType: "application/json; charset=utf-8", success: function(data) { alert("Updated"); }, error: function() { alert("Error"); }, complete: function() { alert("Complete"); } }); return false; }); }); My home controller method which handles the post request public ActionResult Poll(Poll poll) { // Do something with poll here return Json(new { status = "success" }); } A: Check how you can use action filter to achieve your requirement. public class JsonPDataTypeAttribute : ActionFilterAttribute { public override void OnResultExecuting(ResultExecutingContext filterContext) { filterContext.HttpContext.Response.AppendHeader("Content-Type", "application/json"); e79caf774b
