Vladimir Vyushkov (linguist) Vladimir Aleksandrovich Vyushkov (Russian: Bnaдимир Александрович Вышков) (26 January 1929 – 25 August 1995) was a Russian linguist and psychologist who studied the development of language and became famous for his research on the development of the language-specific mental abilities (LSMA) of children and adolescents. Biography Vyushkov was born in Saint Petersburg to the father, a lawyer, and mother, a teacher. After finishing school he worked as an interpreter on the staff of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and then for a bank. At the end of the Second World War, in 1945, he entered the Leningrad Psychoneurological Institute, Department of Language, where he took his higher education in the areas of Psychology, Linguistics, and Literature. In 1950 Vyushkov defended his Candidate's thesis and received a degree in Psychology. At the same time, he worked on his Ph.D. thesis entitled "Studies on the Intelligibility of Dialectical Engagements and of Dialectal Difficulties. An Investigation of the Connection of Language and Cognition". While working on this thesis, he developed to the language unit ability), the ability to recognize and comprehend language represented in the imagination (to judge mental images
