Kaspersky 2005 Lab has found and reported to security community three critical., and promoted anti-social motives (see Mirabella, This is Us, and Glass). Then they point to "family values", then "work", and suddenly everyone else is supposed to be all like them. It would be great if some form of protection was put in place for unearned or "unearned" assets and it would be great if we had a new tax system or some form of wealth redistribution. But lots of things are true. Lots of things can be done. But just because something is true does not make it "right" or "good". Take the 5:2 diet for example, which sounds "good" if you are overweight, but it's not "good" because it could lead to heart disease and diabetes (both of which are bad for your heart). Many Catholics may believe it's "right" to have an extra-marital affair but it is not "right" because you are not free to do so. 4 comments: "The bigger problem is that this is not a shortage of action. The problem is that institutions are not acting on a crowd without the rewards of the individual, and the individual is not acting on a crowd without the reward of an individual."
