Divinities are balanced on the scale between good and evil. These divine beings hold sway over the world and demand the ultimate sacrifice of mortals when it comes time for a reckoning. The dragonborn are the most diverse and enigmatic of all the races of Faerûn. The new dragons of Icewind Dale, the frost giant and the dragon lords have their own subtlety and power that they will bring to the battle. Even the newly ascended dragon goddess, Yvon, has kept her dragon sons to themselves, denying her their power. The druid is one of the most powerful and enigmatic of the races. A druid channels the power of the wild and uses the forces of nature to his advantage. They tend to be more aligned with elves and halflings, being druids will often ally themselves with these other races. A druid is often best known as a healer or a caster in PvP. The ranger is a fierce warrior known for his ability to hunt and fight against all odds. Rangers can be found amongst a wide variety of races, but they are predominantly found amongst the blood elves and the dwarves. Rangers tend to focus most on close quarter combat and avoiding traps and ambushes, hunting a single target for miles at a time. The barbarian is a warrior of strength and ferocity. The barbarian is typically a solitary creature, preferring to fight alone. A barbarian will likely not accept allies into his party. However, when it comes time to stand against an enemy he will return to the dark side of his nature. Despite a love of simple things, and a fierce hatred of all things civilized, a barbarian often displays compassion for their enemies. Difficulty Options: There are several difficulty options available for the Heroes Tokens.
