True Crime. Lipase-catalyzed enantioselective acylation of phenyl acetates: application to synthesis of (-)-gossypol lactone. Lipases are classified into three families based on their substrate specificity: esterases, triglyceride lipases, and lipoprotein lipases. Chiral recognition of the substrate is an essential step in enzymatic reactions, but the role of each lipase family in acylation processes remains unclear. In this study, the activity of seven lipases of different hydrolytic types on various α - and β -substituted phenyl acetates and the influence of lipase substrate structure on the enantioselective reaction of phenyl acetate with lignoceroyl chloride were investigated using lipase-catalyzed acylation with 9-borofluorenylmethoxycarbonyl chloride (Bfmoc) in hexafluoroisopropanol (HFIP) to produce α -substituted phenyl acetates in high yield and enantiomeric excess. Lipases of different hydrolytic types showed different selectivity and efficiency of acylation reactions, with maltogenic lipase exhibiting the highest enantioselectivity. However, this activity seemed to depend on the structure of the phenyl acetates. The enantioselectivity of the lipase-catalyzed reaction was strongly affected by the enantiomeric relationship between the α - and β -substituents of the phenyl acetates. The highest enantioselectivity (85% ee) was observed in the enantiomeric opposite-relationship system. Tomato intake and ovarian cancer: results of a controlled, multicentre, case-control study. To clarify whether tomato intake is associated with increased risk of ovarian cancer, we conducted a case-control study in Italy, Poland and the Netherlands between April 1999 and June 2000. Subjects included 889 women with incident, histologically confirmed primary ovarian cancer and 1,135 population-based control subjects. Information on various dietary factors was obtained by means of a questionnaire at interview. Odds ratios (ORs)

True Crime.. \hat{A} .Viral infections of lymphoid cells in children with IgA deficiency. Four studies have previously demonstrated that children with IgA deficiency have a significantly increased risk of Epstein-Barr virus (EBV)-induced infectious mononucleosis, but an association between IgA deficiency and other viral infections has not been documented. To study associations between IgA deficiency and viral infections. Review of the medical records of children with IgA deficiency from January 1988 to July 1991. Primary care and university hospitals. Patients Twenty-nine patients were identified. Eighteen (62%) were men. They had a median age of 14.4 years (range, 1.2-17.6 years). Nineteen (66%) were treated because of recurrent respiratory tract infections, 4 (14%) had hyper- or hypothyroidism, 3 (11%) had diarrhea, and 2 (7%) were noted to have a varicella-zoster virus (VZV) antibody titer that was 1:10 or higher. Fifteen (52%) had respiratory tract infections documented by laboratory analyses, including 8 (28%) with evidence of a respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) infection. IgA deficiency was detected in 15 (52%) of 29 children; among 26 infected with EBV, only one had evidence of EBV infection. Thus, children with IgA deficiency have a low incidence of viral infections. No association was seen between IgA deficiency and an increased frequency of viral respiratory tract infections, hyper- or hypothyroidism, or gastroenteritis. We are unable to explain the association between IgA deficiency and VZV infection.) = $b^{2} - 4*b - 1$. Let t be u(4). Let i be $(-2 + 8/6)*t$. Let $h(o) = -4 + i - 2*o - o$. Let $s(n) = -5*n$. True Crime: New York City (Highly Compressed)Willie The K "Willie the K" (sometimes alternatively known as "Willie the Cat") is a short story written in 1906 by English author Arthur Conan Doyle. Publication history "Willie the K" was first published in The Strand Magazine on 6 January 1906 under the title of "Willie the Cat". It was included in The Casebook of the World's Great Detectives, Volume Two (1906), in The Very Complete Sherlock Holmes (1947) and in The Return of Sherlock Holmes (1978). Synopsis The story is told to Watson by Holmes. It concerns the unusual exploits of a cat named Willie. Willie's owner is a "droll" and a chemist named Ricardo. Ricardo was one of the guests at the wedding of Holmes' friend, John Ferrier, the brother of an old friend of Ricardo's. Ricardo was bidden to the wedding by John Ferrier, to persuade his brother to attend. John Ferrier's brother was out of town, but his friend, the wealthy and powerful Francis Cardinal Moray, was among the guests. At the wedding, Francisco Arista, chief of the Moray family, startled everyone by shooting himself in the head. As a result, his son Adolphus was orphaned and Francis Cardinal Moray was left unprovided for. Holmes was the executor of his uncle's will, which left one
