You will be given two squares to use, one on the left and the other on the right. One has the dungeon, where you can find bricks and books, while the other has the three-color orbs. The third square, which has the round areas in-between the two, is where you will play a spell, and it will determine how your character dies. As you progress through the game, each spell will become more difficult, and you will have to collect the items needed to cast the spell. Also, there are chests, which can either hold the items that you are searching for, or the weapon to defend yourself against enemies. The chests are spread throughout the game world, and you will have to travel through different areas, to get to the item that you are searching for. Of The Day After 22 years, the Life's Lane wishes all of us a Merry Christmas, a Happy Holidays and a Healthy New Year. We hope that 2015 is a successful year for yours and our programs, projects, work and adventures. We wish you to have every joyous occasion equally considered. The wonderful Hans Price, a long-time contributor to this blog, provided the closing haunting lines for this historic renewal of our efforts. Now comes the Yule log, Life's Lane picture in the fire. The flames dance. The Angel blows out the candle, Life's Lane fades. The door rings, a company of us settles in to wait. The fireplace spits a speech as words are transformed into smoke: I watched the night grow yellow and red. I listened to the rats scuttle across the logs. 'Tis the season for reaching out to a stranger and being reached, for plucking pleasure from the arrangements we make on this merry web of our many lives. Sunday, January 6, 2016 Sarah Allison good music. I miss her. I see her on PBS station WLIW in Pittsburgh twice a week and have relied on her for years. But she has some competition. Here is my music pick for this memorable and awe-inspiring year for humanity. This is a typical afternoon. It is 7:30 - midday. A storm is rolling in from the north and the temperature is dropping. I was off earlier to watch the snow fall. Several inches sat on the landscape and the tall fir trees in the forest as well as the dead limbs of the maples and oaks on the lawns all around the community. I am putting you into my music box. And I am talking about the words, the refrains. The cleverness of the tunes. The simplicity. The sadness. The sunshine. Peace. Love. The music that fits your mood at this time. Almost any black music will do. Right. Now, let's deal with "Riddles In Stone." It's just so realistic for this time of the year. The only thing it does not account for, however, is the early 20th century, first wave Spanish Harlem. Click here for more on this tune. Is it possible that with the arrival of winter will come the real New Year and a real Christmas

Cat Clicker is a version of the popular clicker game here on steam, but where in an arcade version there is only one cursor, this game has six, and more. Each cursor has six difficulties, and each level has six levels. As the game progresses the cursor moves right, and if you click on too many cats you'll lose points. There are 20 cats in each level, and each cat costs a single point to click. Try to beat the game without clicking on all the cats! The game has thirty different levels, and each level has five difficulty levels (though the difficulties are the same). The six levels are: A: All 20 Cats RemovedB: 10 Cats RemovedC: 5 Cats RemovedD: 1 Cat RemovedE: No Cursor VisibleF: Cursor Only - Click for Score Each of the six levels are much harder than the levels you'll find in the arcade version, as these have been tuned for the added difficulty. The game has a complex control scheme that will allow anyone to play, even people with little or no experience with the clicker game. Game Description: Cat Clicker is a game about clicking on cats. As you click, the purple cursor moves around the screen, and if you click on too many cats the cursor turns red. If you click on a cat that turns red then you will lose a point. Every cat costs a single point to click, and in order to beat the level you must click on all the cats. Use your skills, patience and time management to complete each level as quickly as possible. Sometimes, if you make a mistake, the cursor can be left behind. If you are in this state, click the cursor a second time and the cursor will reappear. Each level is separated by a short cut-scene showing the six different levels of the game. After you reach level six, the game ends and you move to a brief title screen. If you beat the game you get a free cat. As you play the game, you can buy cats from the store. A single cat costs you one cent. The last game you played on your PC was a cat-clicking game, and you've wanted to try it out again for a long time, now is the time to do so! Purchasing the game also unlocks bonus content. After a successful purchase, you unlock these features: Online scoreboard - Find out how you rank against everyone
