PHP I'm trying to convert this simple alert message script into a jQuery Mobile/PHP script: `alert('A simple alert message.');` But I get nothing but errors when running the PHP page. Anyone have any ideas why? A: No semicolon at the end of tag. `alert("A simple alert message.");"; ?>`

Manitoba Municipal Building (Moose Jaw) The Manitoba Municipal Building in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan is a former municipal courthouse from the early 20th century. The building was designed by architect Ralph Mellanby, and built in 1928. It was later designated as the Moose Jaw courthouse, and was used until 1985. The structure was later transformed into a public library, then a theatre. Its exterior and interior has been altered and repurposed numerous times. The building was designated a National Historic Site of Canada in 2007.

Q: Can hidden directory be accessed with out username and password

In our Linux server there is a hidden directory `./.screen` Which contains a log file. Although the log file is in this directory. But while investigating the log file we observed that it was possible to access the hidden directory by just giving the URL to the page eg. `/home/worseen//.screen/idle.log` as it was hidden directory. Can someone explain this to me. Is it a malware or does.screen have some features to protect its contents. Thanks A: The file you are referring to is called an inode. It is basically a bitmap to index the contents of
