Oxford Mastering Science Workbook Answer Key13 Mastering ScienceRespiratory failure caused by brain tumors. We review the literature of cases of respiratory failure caused by brain tumors and discuss the mechanism(s) responsible. Most brain tumors produce a neurologic syndrome, and the resultant hydrocephalus or mass effect result in obstructive or restrictive respiratory disease. Other causes of respiratory compromise include mass effect from cerebral abscesses, hemorrhage, or infarctions. Sarcoidosis, neuromuscular disorders, and postparalytic syndrome also can produce respiratory compromise. In addition to a review of all causes of respiratory failure produced by brain tumors, we discuss possible etiologies for the presentation of respiratory failure in the patient with brain tumor.
