Pulmonary function after intravesical fulguration of refractory detrusor hyperactivity syndrome in multiple sclerosis: a multicentre prospective study. To assess pulmonary function in patients with refractory detrusor hyperactivity syndrome (DH) after intravesical fulguration. Forty-four patients with severe DH refractory to antimuscarinics or anticholinergics were included. Patients were randomized to fulguration and placebo or to placebo and fulguration. Pulmonary function tests including spirometry, forced vital capacity (FVC) and forced expiratory volume in 1 s (FEV1) were performed before and 6 weeks after treatment. All patients had received intravesical injection of 500 mg of Mitomycin C for intravesical fulguration. Patients randomized to fulguration and placebo did not differ in baseline or post-treatment pulmonary function, whereas patients randomized to placebo and fulguration showed a significant improvement in FVC and FEV1. This benefit in lung function persisted after 6 weeks. Intravesical fulguration of refractory DH is safe and efficient. In addition, it was associated
