Pleasant delights of the rain and sunshine! " Do you know the first movie that was dubbed in English,.Q: What are the default functions of a VBA module? I want to write some VBA code in an Excel spreadsheet. To make this easier I use a module that contains functions in addition to variables and constants. Because of not knowing what are the functions that are available in this module I asked a friend to show me how they do something. He told me he did something like the following: a Module was created it got to the line TestFirstName = "mike", then the function "Hello" was called. Now my question is: What are the function of a module? Are there other functions, then when you start debugging you can call the functions of a VBA module from the VBA environment? A: You can start your debugging with Alt+F11. This will bring the VBE and start a new debugging session (Debugging) to your file. After that you can use the "Call" function to call a function. A: If you have a module that has a function in it, then while you are working in the IDE you can select all and use Function. From within Excel, you can use the "Call" function: Sub Test() Dim i As Long For i = 0 To 10 Debug.Print i + 3 * i + i Next i '~~> Select everything in the module then press F9 Call MyFunction Debug.Print i + 3 * i + i '~~> Now select just the "function" in the module and press F9 Call MyFunction End Sub If you want to manually create function in your module, follow the below mentioned steps. Create a module Sub CreateFunction() Dim MyFunction As Function MyFunction = Function(i As Long) Debug.Print i + 3 * i + i End Function End Sub Now you can create function from your code as mentioned above. Function TestFirstName() As String TestFirstName = "Mike" End Function
