and phosphorus fractions of kangkong leaves and their implications for management of kangkong pasture. Kangkong (Ipomoea batatas Lam.) is an important forage for dairy cattle, which generates high production values and high profit for the farmers, but in the kangkong-dominated regions, it is a major source of nonpoint source pollution. Therefore, a better understanding of the characteristics of nutrient fractions in kangkong leaves will aid in improving kangkong production. The objective of this study was to determine the concentrations of organic matter, total and labile

Office 2016.1. Field of the Invention The present invention generally relates to a functional thin film transistor (hereinafter, referred to as “TFT”) formed on an insulating substrate or on a semiconductor substrate, and a method of manufacturing the same. In particular, the present invention relates to a liquid crystal display device including a liquid crystal panel using the TFTs. 2. Description of the Related Art A technique for forming a thin film transistor (TFT) on an insulating substrate or on a semiconductor substrate is widely used for semiconductor integrated circuits, solar cells, image sensors, display devices typified by liquid crystal displays and light-emitting displays, and the like. In recent years, for display devices, from a viewpoint of reducing a weight and a thickness thereof and downsizing, mainly, liquid crystal displays are mainstream, but TFTs are indispensable for driving the liquid crystal display devices. The liquid crystal display device performs image display by switching the orientation of liquid crystal by application of a voltage to the liquid crystal layer formed between two substrates and, in recent years, an active matrix liquid crystal display device using a TFT formed on the substrate is widely used. On the other hand, an EL (electro luminescence) display device including an organic light-emitting element, which is a so-called light-emitting element of which a light-emitting substance emits light by itself by application of an electric field thereto, attracts attention as a display device of the next generation. The EL element has a structure in which an anode and a cathode are laminated with a light-emitting layer sandwiched therebetween, and light is emitted by returning of electrons from the cathode to a ground and recombination of the electrons with holes in the light-emitting layer. As a light-emitting material of the EL element, there are singlet-based light emission and triplet-based light emission. The EL display device is a self-luminous device 0cc13bf012
