FIFA 22 also introduces "create-a-player," which allows gamers to design their own player. A variety of player attributes, behaviors and skills can be custom-tailored to a player's game role. Here's a preview of some of the new interactive features coming to FIFA 22.

FIFA Interactive Center The new FIFA Interactive Center, which debuted in FIFA 20, returns in FIFA 22 and allows gamers to create and share content. FIFA Interactive Center includes two new features: Create-a-Player: New to FIFA Interactive Center, create-a-player allows gamers to design their own player, complete with personal attributes, game roles and player model. Players can also apply branding to their squad and uniforms, as well as specify uniforms for the bench, wall and goalpost. Build & Share: Also new to FIFA Interactive Center, users can now build their very own stadium. They can design turf fields, practice pitches and stadiums and share their creations with the world via the app. FIFA Ultimate Team In addition to its great new FMOTB feature, FIFA 22 introduces a brand new experience, FIFA Ultimate Team, bringing great new features and more intuitive controls to football fans of all skill levels. New features Use the fabled FUT mode to dominate with the greatest team in the world. Now, you can select your favourite players from a greater selection in your squad and see which

Create and manage your very own team of the world's very best players and compete in matches in three match modes against friendlies, real opposition, and your own created teams - it's now easier than ever to be the ultimate gamer. FIFA Mobile - Take on the challenge of becoming the player people choose and turn clubs into global brands. Join the game and compete in FIFA's iconic tournaments with your friends in the new eSports mode. Then in single-player mode, use your skills in the new Freekick mode to develop your signature free kick into your very own arsenal of deadly strikes. Take the challenge of becoming the player that people choose, in FIFA Mobile! PLUS there is all the content in Career Mode you have come to know and love from FIFA on consoles, including the all new POTM system and the all new One Touch Game Face Technology. FIFA Online LIVE can be downloaded from the App Store or Google Play I've been playing for a few weeks now, and while I thought this edition was good, there were some issues, and I had to adjust to them. It's basically a mix of Ultimate Team and FIFA Online, meaning you can play with a ton of new EA backed content and the ability to play online with opponents from all around the world. I started with the Australian teams, and I had no idea what I was doing. I had to play a few matches against my friend who's the only expert, and then when he was out of town, I was joining different online matchmaking servers with very unskilled players, making tons of mistakes and not learning the game to save my life. I'm sure I'll get a lot better with time and a ton of matches, but right now I'm still getting the hang of how everything works and how to counter different things. I'd say the new Champions League mode is the most noteworthy change. The mode is basically a very quick way to go through the 2013/2014 season. You're able to jump into the Champion's League group stage matches and play through the group stages. It has a really interesting single match system, meaning you'll basically fill a fake player's stats based on who you played. You'll also be able to earn whatever the team scores, and earn bonuses based on goals, and general play. I played a match
