The outdoor goods are to be taken to a new, £10 million indoor recycling plant in Dagenham, East London, where the company has invested £30 million to recycle more than 5,000 tonnes of plastic and rubber waste from its customers' sheds, garden sheds, wooden pallets and roof-top space last year. The plant has been created by Skyline Recycling, a specialist waste management business that was formerly part of the Coca-Cola Company. It will feed the recycled material into new high-density polyethylene (HDPE) production for the emerging plastic film and packaging markets and also speciality petrochemical processing, Skyline said. "The 1,300 tonnes of waste we have collected in the past three months is a very significant part of our capacity," said Ed Weeks, general manager of Skyline Recycling. "The business is now developing a significant process of converting these waste products into the raw material for new HDPE products. And we are working hard to demonstrate to regulators and the market that we are making a commercially viable recycling business out of our existing outdoor storage facility." The 1,300 tonnes of waste will be taken from a site in an industrial estate near the Hainault rail line, on the boundary between the London Borough of Havering and the London Borough of Barking and Dagenham. Mr Weeks expects the Dagenham plant to reach full
