1.1. Transparent Layers, Shadows, and Gradients Transparency refers to the fact that you can see through an image. When you add transparency to an image, you make parts of that image visible. Think of using the color picker tool to add a yellow drop shadow to a black background. See the images below: You can see through the black background, and the white drops of the shadow are clearly visible even though they blend in with the background. When you add transparency to images, it is important to keep in mind that they will never be completely opaque. The white boxes at the bottom of the image are examples of transparency on a white background. In that example, they are completely transparent. A gray background and blue drop shadow: A white background and black drop shadow: Suffice it to say, you should always Photoshop away from the edges. 1.2. Water Effects in Photoshop 1.3. Filters Filters are perfect when you want to be creative in creating different views or textures from your images. You can use them to alter the colors of your image, blur your image, or even create a water effect in your image. There are many different filters available to use and create all kinds of different effects. The filters are like little self-contained changes to your image. In addition to adding effects, you can also define exposure, contrast, and exposure. There are two ways to apply a filter. You can either press or click on the filter to apply it, or you can use the Filter effect. 1.4. The Importance of the Color Picker The color picker allows you to add a new color to the image. By using the color picker, it is a very easy way to change the color of pixels in your image. For example, if you want to apply the color green to a specific area of your image, you can use the color picker to select the color green. To view the color picker, open the image that you want to apply the color to. Click on the color picker tool on your tool bar. You can select multiple colors, but only one at a time. Colors are added to the image by clicking

Can anyone suggest me? A: Database Access There is a Database API in Windows Phone. It implements IDbConnection and IDataReader. These enable you to perform CRUD operations as well as to retrieve and select data from your database. There are APIs for other database types. For details, you can see my previous answer to a question about Database access in Windows Phone.

2014 Botany 500 The 2014 Botany 500 was a motor racing event for the Australian Lexus IS F and Holden VF Commodore racing cars. It was held on 2 February 2014. The event was organised by the Surfers Paradise City Council and was the first event to take place at the Surfers Paradise International Circuit since the 2008 Queensland Raceway round of the V8 Supercar Championship Series. Background This was the first event of the 2014 V8 Supercars Championship. Since 2008, the Surfers Paradise International Circuit has been the home of the V8 Supercar Championship Series. The event was held at the Surfers Paradise International Circuit in Surfers Paradise, Queensland, Australia. The Surfers Paradise International Circuit is a 3.2 km long street circuit, containing 33 turns. The circuit sits immediately south of the Gold Coast Highway between Pacific Fair shopping centre and Southport. The first two turns are banked at five degrees, the third turn is banked at three degrees and the last two turns are banked at approximately four degrees. Ahead of the event a public road and air testing program was held for the Holden VF Commodore and the Lexus IS F, which was scheduled for February 2014. Entry list Practice and qualifying Practice Three practice sessions were held before the race; one on Friday and two on Saturday. Each driver was limited to one flying lap with a one-minute time penalty being incurred for any significant speeding infractions. Saturday, 1 February Qualifying The qualifying session was held on Saturday, February 2. Each driver was limited to twelve minutes in which to set a time and was required to take four timed laps. The fastest five drivers from qualifying advanced to the race. Race The race took place on Sunday, February 3. It was scheduled to start at 12:30 AEST (UTC+10) with practice and qualifying at 12:30 (UTC+10), and the race commencing at 2:00 (UTC+10). The lap duration was around 75 minutes. Results Results as follows: — — — — — indicates that driver started the race but had to withdraw within the first 30 minutes for safety reasons.
