Dekeying is a process that lets you remove the keylines (the guide lines used by projector, and optical printer) found on a transparent or semi-transparent object. These can be used to give an image a more professional look. By using this option, Photoshop can 'unlock' the transparency, allowing images to blend into each other as if they are the same color. Adobe enables you to use the Auto-Blur feature to create stylized blurred backgrounds for your images. This can be a quick and easy way to make your images look more visually appealing. Using an innovative process known as 'Photo Merge', Adobe enables users to combine two or more images together. This makes it easy to create seamless images that are perfectly aligned. There are a number of painting tools in Photoshop, such as the Pen Tool, which helps to create various effect brushes that can be applied to images. The Pen Tool allows you to fill a selection with the brush tool and remove unwanted pixels with the Eraser. You can use the Brushes feature to paint or draw over images to change the look and feel of your image. By using the Watercolor, Paintbrush, Scatter, Ink, and Other Edit Brushes, you can easily apply textures, charts, and patterns to create an image that looks as though it has been painted. The Filter feature in Photoshop enables you to manipulate an image in various ways. It comes with a wide variety of filter effects that you can apply to an image to achieve different results. Evaluation of in vitro urothelial differentiation and maturation potential of human dermal papilla stem cells and mesenchymal stem cells. Recently, there has been a growing trend toward the use of mesenchymal stem cells (MSCs) in regenerative medicine, owing to their multi-lineage differentiation potential. However, regarding urogenital reconstructive surgery, there are very few studies using stem cells. Moreover, the most appropriate stem cell source for organ regeneration remains controversial. In this study, we developed an in vitro system for urothelial differentiation and maturation. The results showed that the genetic expression profiles of human dermal papilla stem cells (hDPSCs) were similar to those of human urothelial cells. Furthermore, RT-PCR results showed that hDPSCs had a similar mRNA expression profile for urothelial differentiation (CK7, CK18, CK20, CK20, and CDH1) during the 14-day induction period. In addition, during the 16-day maturation period, the expression of urothelial cell maturation markers (CK20 and CDH1) in hDPSCs was significantly up-regulated compared with undifferentiated hDPSCs. Therefore, hDPSCs are a reliable stem cell source for urothelial regeneration.Q: How do I prevent old questions being bumped when posting an answer for simple questions? Possible Duplicate: FAQ: How do the "active oldest"/"active newest" questions work? I answered a simple question a while back. It was a reasonable answer. Well, I did not get the "community wiki" checkmark. I figured the question would be locked down and I would never get rep for my answer, but to my surprise I did get my 15 points back. How does this happen? How do you prevent my answer from being bumped and marked as "community wiki" if it is not an accepted answer? (Please don't tell me to put a bounty on the question. That doesn't work if you are in the same timezone as the OP). A: Check the "site administration" menu, there is a "posts last modified" option there.
