In an era where the digital revolution is paving its way, the global retail sector is witness to the disappearance of the traditional brick-and-mortar stores, in favour of web-based retail stores. While trends such as 'click and collect' have helped in reducing friction in e-commerce retail, consumers have not been really happy with the current way in which online orders are executed. Customers may have to wait, get irritated by the long process and suffer from slow service - it has indeed been quite an experience for online shoppers. But time is not on the online e-retailer's side anymore. The need of the hour is to offer a quick and seamless checkout experience. This involves handling the visitor's data, collecting transactions, personalisation and an easy checkout experience. On the other hand, the impact of an efficient checkout experience on an e-retailer's bottom line is huge, as it can drive almost 80 percent more transactions. With the emergence of new technologies such as Augmented Reality (AR) and Virtual Reality (VR), brick-and-mortar retail stores are increasingly moving towards seamless e-commerce checkout experiences, in order to attract the increasing attention of customers. The following are some of the technologies that are enhancing the customer experience by making the shopping process more personal. AR-Approaching Real Time AR is proving its worth on the e-commerce front as it helps in providing personalised service to customers. As AR-enabled apps or products emerge, the use of visual aids will play a major role in making the shopping process more personalised and enjoyable. And the whole process can become more transparent to customers as well, as AR-powered apps can be controlled remotely or can be used during the checkout process. Let's take an example of an AR-powered retail app, MyCollections: a luxury app with over 50 brands, which uses a technology called 'Artificial Intelligence'. If you want to shop with this app, simply download it to your smart phone and you can view and order your favourite 0cc13bf012
