What's new in Elden Ring:

"...numerous flaws in the visuals, the ridiculous story, the method of combat, bugs galore, a plumbd through inconsistently designed level design, grossed out or GIANTLY sexy girls who are crippled, and a mere handful of fun times in belying a narrative "hole" that has never been adequately patched or fixed. While no narrative hole is a reason to purchase a video game, unless the narrative hole is considered funny/pathetic (Hollow Knight) - in this game, it is not even a joke. Final Fantasy/Roleplaying and Legend of Dragoon fans should proceed with caution. If you have any knowledge of RPG's well enough to have played them, you will know what your expectations and potential pay-off will entail. " Settlers of Catan has caused a very interesting discussion to happen on the "Settlers in Games" forum. The discussion is about how people feel about digital board games and how they compare to physical board games. I love board games, but I was never a Kickstarter supporter. Although the experience was far from perfect, my time with KDP would of never been as enjoyable as it was were it not for digital board games. I have become a KDP supporter again. It's quite fun and the questions are very touching and sometimes too much. I prefer to read the questions and let the game speak for me. The Kickstarter campaign is currently sitting at $3,174,386. If you consider that the current placeholder backers are just taking their pledge to hear what the game is like, that's a really large number. You have to admit if they aren't all excited about it, then maybe something is up. I've never played or seen any of the popular Steam card games such as Pharaonic, Pharaoh, Field of Vision, SeaFall, Star Realms, Le Havre (did not support Linux at the time), Dominion, Race for the Galaxy, Munchkin and more. But maybe because I have a hard time getting excited about Steam board games, I take Steam roleplaying games to be more of a game than a game. It's more a storytelling engine in my head. Then I watch a Screenshot Sunday to get a feeling of the scale being wrong and the dark colors that makes it difficult to see the cards and what is going on. If I were to make one card game, I would of asked
