(2048) Ukori Vs Lire 10 - sfd - Q: Route parameters order in Yii2 using gii I am using Gii to generate my controller and models. I need to add a route to my controller. Example. My route in my yii.php should look like this $config = yii\web\ArrayConfig::merge(['enableCsrfValidation' => true, 'enableClientValidation' => true,]); $router = Yii::createObject(ArrayHelper::merge(['id' => 'home', 'label' => 'Home',], $config)); $router->class = 'HomeController'; $router->defaultAction = 'index'; I use it like that in my ApplicationController when I call it from my HomeController public function actions() { return ['home' => ['class' => 'HomeController',],]; } but I need to know if I have a parameter in my route, I mean I don't want to have to have a parameter in my route always. example: return ['home' => [

Changes to Windows in Windows Vista: Windows Vista features a number of changes to the way users interact with Windows, including changes that affect how programs and the Windows system run. Some of these changes are intentional and others are the result of introducing new functionality into the Windows kernel. Every modification of the Windows kernel affects programs and the end user, so it's important to understand what these changes mean. This section explains the most important changes to Windows Vista from a user's perspective. Windows Vista Plugs into Everything Like Windows XP Windows Vista continues to work in the same way as Windows XP. Programs run when you double-click an icon on the desktop, right-click on an item in the Start menu, or press Alt-Tab. All programs can run in full-screen mode. When you use a program in full-screen mode, the
