KMSAuto Easy.I would like to know if anyone is doing site specific kitesurfing and have done any major work on their truck. I am looking for a round and square for the bed. My truck is 25' long. I would like a longer air chamber than I have (12') and a longer rail on the back. I am planning on running dual rails on the trailer as well. I want to do a big rig site specific. If anyone is looking for a car kitesurfer I would like to hear about it. Thanks, Rob}OBUSH|ATX|TX "Fly to live and live to fly." 01-27-2009 09:51 AM Skaockey Rob, who is interested in helping you with the site specific kitesurfing rig for the big rig? 01-27-2009 09:07 AM Rob Skaockey, You are my new best friend. This is what I have done so far. I have a 12' air chamber and I would like to change to 16'. I am just not sure if that is big enough. I'm not really sure what sort of rig I should run. I'm leaning toward running a 14' x 14' wing on the rail and center bar and not getting the complete pontoon. I want to be able to launch and land at extreme distances as well as maneuver. Rob}OBUSH|ATX|TX "Fly to live and live to fly." 01-26-2009 11:46 PM Skaockey Well Rob what size motor do you use. 01-26-2009 11:42 PM Rob Well, I'm still looking at this. I have a 4.3L engine and I dont think it has the power to pull the boat as fast as I need to. 01-26-2009 09:20 PM Skaockey I'm planning on the bigger air chamber (16 6d1f23a050
