I have a username and password that the users enters when they login so I can use that information to connect with their account in my application. However, when I try to connect with that information I get an error that the user entered an incorrect password. I have been trying to find what the issue is but I can't seem to. I found some instructions online that said the problem can be solved by logging out of the application and then logging back in. I tried that and it did not work. I also tried connecting with that information and then logging out of the application again and then it did work but after the second or third time that I login the third party application will not create a new connection and the connection with that information will not work. Does anyone have any suggestions on how to solve this problem? Thanks in advance. A: In some cases, the problem might be the account doesn't have offline access enabled 6d1f23a050
