Education, if not the most effective way to bring about positive social change, is the surest and the easiest means of changing the existing socio-political scenario. Mr Govind Anil Nair, a final semester Engineering student from the University of Swinburne Malaysia won the fourth annual Swinburne Sarawak Creative Writing Competition that was launched on 19th September. Students had one month to submit their short story of less than 1,200 words. Anil's story, Semina Vitae, was a dystopian piece that told of the protagonists journey through the harsh landscape of an Earth whose air is so polluted that humans can only survive in domes where the only clean air on the planet is available. He submitted two drafts of his story and was asked to select the final version. A panel of renowned judges from the Malaysian, Malaysian Institute of Mental Health and the Malaysian Police Force, made it difficult for Anil to win and informed him that his story must be the best, the most honest and even the most touching and emotional piece in the competition. Govinds story, Semina Vitae, was based on his research on environmental science and the human element surrounding sustainable development. Anil hopes to be a plastic surgeon by medical school and doctor by end. Govinds story is a heartwarming and inspiring one. Many of us join the rat race but yearn to do something else- give something back. Perhaps ones true calling is not a 24*7 job, perhaps its letting go and finding fulfillment in other ways. Following ones passion and dreams often gets lost on this hectic ride of Life we are on. Its never too late to start, theres always something or someone who could benefit from our knowledge or skills or even, just our time. All it takes is to reach inside of ourselves and then reach out. It doesnt matter whether you are a CEO or someone in a position of leadership. Anyone can do it and the rewards are not something words can express sufficiently. Like Anil, we too can make a change.
