then too, expressvpn claims that its fastest vpn available, and that its 80% cheaper than any other service in the same category, but what is the quality of that software? i downloaded the free version of expressvpn and went straight to the servers section of the site. now the software doesnt list any servers. in the end, buying a vpn service is ultimately a matter of trust. do you trust the company and the way it promises to protect your sensitive browsing history. dont forget that either of these services can and will sell your browsing history if there is a large demand for it. any way you look at it, expressvpn and privatevpn are for two entirely different audiences. the expressvpn is designed to be a simple and fast vpn service, and is probably for people who dont care too much about security. privatevpn promises a better level of security, something that is not optional, but that will appeal to people who are a little more finicky. so which one is the right one for you? the best vpn services often also offer a mobile app. downloading an app to your iphone or android can be an extra deterrent to hackers. its also handy if you want to connect to a vpn when youre travelling, at the gym, or just want to be able to connect from any device without having to resort to a laptop or desktop. a vpn could also expose your device or network to threats that are not inherent to it, but your traffic is routed through their network, exposing you to their security practices. although some vpns perform security scans of your device, some isps or governments can force a vpn to do such scans, without your consent, upon your request, or even outright ban or throttle their use.
