and now to add my 2 cents worth.. i'm pleased to say, that this is not a glitch. i played the game about a dozen times, and never experienced that. what i did notice was, that the game was very easy to get lost in. because of this, i found myself spending a lot of time just exploring the map, or watching my scanner to try to find the exit. something i had never done before. with this, i also found my self referring to the map more, and more often, before i'd made it to the next area. the map was becoming my best friend. if i wasn't careful, i would easily spend hours playing just one area. with that, i do have a question. i've been playing gttod for about an hour now, and i'm just starting to get lost. i'm near the end of the game, i'm at a fork in the road, and i'm not quite sure which way to go. i feel as though i'm missing something, and i'm not quite sure what that is. i've tried looking at the map and the compass, but that didn't help at all. if you've played this game before, or if you are currently playing, and are familiar with the game, then please share with me your experience in this game. i'd love to know if i'm missing something crucial. also, i'd love to know if there is any way to unlock the full game without having the cd-key. i'm aware of the windows genuine advantage screens, but i'm not a big fan of them. i'd much rather have the game work with out being checked. that would be ideal. as the next sequence begins, you'll be thrown through the air, taking a few hits to build up speed. at this point, you'll be separated from your gun and ammo, and you're going to need both to survive. throw yourself to the left and you'll land on a protruding pipe that you can grab and pull yourself along. now aim for the orange door on the right. if you take a couple of hits on the way, simply roll and you'll land in a different position. you should land on the orange door itself, which will give you some extra time to reload.
